

KAVITHA SPECIALISES IN MAKING TRENDY JEWELLERY

By Our Staff Reporter

Kavitha Sridharan, who lives in Alwarpet quit her job in a bank and took to making jewellery.

Her brand is called 'Chingari'.

Kavitha painstakingly creates pieces of jewellery to suit contemporary trends.

"I have a lot of creative energy in me and I decided to channelise it this way!" is how she explains the shift in profession.

Jewellery sets in glass beads, crystals, semi precious beads and stones and in oxidised metal can add that touch of class as accessories to casual or evening wear.

From where does she source the materials?

"From Jaipur, some from Bangalore and others as I spot them when I am out looking out for materials for customised jewellery," she says.

Her prices are very reasonable as she has no high overheads and the range starts from Rs.100 to Rs.1000.

Earrings, bracerlots, chains, wrist bands . . . Kavitha produces whatever a woman wears to enhance her personality.

One can also shop for trendy cellphone pouches made of eco friendly jute and decorated tambdaam.
